

FOX HUNTERS MISTAKEN FOR NAZIS

Place Rabies Ban In Town Of Frankfort

A rabies quarantine has been established in Frankfort township, Tuesday evening a state official conferred with Supervisor Wm. Kampe and representatives of the village boards of Frankfort and Mokena relative to the establishment of the quarantine.

All stray dogs are to be shot on sight. Owners of dogs for which dog licenses have been purchased are warned to keep their dogs at home or tied up and when they are on the streets they must be on a leash.

Such dogs may also be shot if the warning is not heeded. Quite a number of instances of infected dogs has caused the bringing about of the quarantine. Recently a large stray police dog was shot near Frankfort, after he had bitten another dog. The head of the police dog was sent to the Chicago Laboratory for analysis and the report was that it had been infected with rabies.

The following notice has been posted throughout Frankfort township: Rabies Quarantine. State of Illinois, Dwight H. Green, Governor, Department of Agriculture.

By virtue of authority vested in the State Department of Agriculture under "An act to Prevent the Spread of Rabies", approved July 8, 1927, in force July 8, 1927; amended July 8, 1938:

Because of the prevalence of rabies in Frankfort Township, Will County, State of Illinois, it is hereby ordered that all dogs within the above area be either 1. Kept confined within an enclosure from which escape is impossible, or 2. Kept restrained by a leash composed of chain or other indestructible material. This order effective March 2nd, 1942 and until notice of release.

Howard Leonard, Director of Agriculture, Dr. C. E. Fidler, Chief Veterinarian.

Mokena Man Preparing For Return of Horse And Buggy Days

There is one business man in Mokena who believes in preparing for things to come. In the present days of tire shortages there's a possibility of automobiles and trucks being supplanted by the old time horse and buggies or wagons, creating the old time "horse and buggy days". For many years the old fashioned hitching racks and posts have been a thing of the past but now in anticipation of the return of the old horse and buggy days Morry Larson who operates a tavern on Front St., in Mokena across from the Rock Island depot has had an old fashioned hitching rail erected in front of his place of business.

The accompanying photo shows Mr. Larson standing in front of the hitching post and also a team of horses and a span of mules tied to the hitching rack. This is the first business place in any of the surrounding communities to prepare for the return of the old days.

How these problems are solved makes for a story that will not be forgotten.

Seven hogs were sold for $70.00 each, so the numbers were put in a hat and No. 18 was drawn out. The purchaser was the Caryl C. Benders Farm of Mokena. The auctioneers each added 50c to the amount bringing the total up to $71.00, which was turned over to Ethel Y. Pronger, the representative for the Palos Unit.

On behalf of the American Red Cross, she wishes to thank Mr. Macauley for his generous donation. It is true American citizens such as he that help the Red Cross carry on their wonderful work. Her thanks go also to the auctioneers and the Benders Farm for their cooperation in making the sale such a great success.

Due to an article published in this paper earlier in the year and the scouting of some of the students, several instruments have been brought to the band director. Yet, because they were purchased at cheap prices, they will be available to the first pupils who ask for them either to buy or rent, at very reasonable prices.

Motorist With War Jitters Calls Police

An excited motorist passing along Lincoln Highway Sunday noon thought he saw the Nazi army moving in when he noticed a large group of fox hunters along Lincoln Highway and Route 45.

In his hysteria the motorist called the Homewood police station and excitedly exclaimed that he thought the armed men were a group of Nazis dressed like farmers and that their intention was to seize the WLS station on Route 45 and to cut off the power and telephone lines.

This of course set off a young bomb shell and the Homewood police became just as excited. They in turn notified state highway police at Blue Island and other neighboring highway officials were called in. Within a few minutes eight squads were on their way and soon converged at the intersection of Route 45 and Lincoln Highway where they found over 150 farmers, all armed, and really thought they were running into something. Finally Lieut. Maurino of the Blue Island state highway police advanced to meet a spokesman of the supposedly "invaders".

The police official was dumb founded when the spokesman said, "We are farmers of this area who have lost scores of chickens and several sheep to foxes. We have banded together today to get these foxes and you can't stop us." "Why can't we?" Lieut. Maurino asked. "Because we have a permit from the game warden." Then another farmer came forward showing the pelt of a well punctured fox.

Lieut. Maurino and his men waved the huntsmen to proceed, then ordered the motorists to move on. More than 200 motorists had stopped to see what all the excitement was about.

After all, eight squads of policemen can't stand around doing nothing, so they decided to go home.

This shows what hysteria is doing in war time. The motorist may have had all good intentions, but he didn't use his head. Instead of investigating his suspicions he gave vent to his excited feelings and made a lot of excitement and commotion over nothing. The fox hunt in question originated in Mokena when about 150 hunters got together and proceeded along Wolf Road and Lincoln Highway, Route 45 and westward to the Fred Scheel farm. Six of the foxes were shot in the vicinity of the Thomson farm along Lincoln Highway and one fox was killed on the Fred Scheel farm.

Several other foxes were seen but got away. Four state game wardens were with the hunters and the entire hunt was conducted in an orderly and lawful manner.

The hunters had a double thrill as the result of the state highway police being called out and they being mistaken for invading nazis.

This coming Sunday there will be another fox hunt on Route 47 and 52 near Dundee, commencing at 12:30 p.m. The following game wardens will accompany the fox hunters: Bill Miller, Bud Franklin and Joe Britski. The highway police will be warned in time so they won't mistake the hunters for nazis as was the case last Sunday near Mokena.

Price Control Affecting Millions

Preventing War-Time Inflation Is Reason

By CLIFF LANGE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CHICAGO, ILL.—Ever since the price control bill was signed by President Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public have been wondering how the family pocketbook will be effected.

They have been wondering about the possible increase in cost of foodstuffs. Will their rent go up? How much more will they have to pay for clothing for the family and themselves?

They've been doing a lot of thinking since that day in January when the price control bill became the law of the land. Never before have they run up against any such law which has such a far reaching effect, not only on themselves, but the United States and, gradually, the rest of the world.

But it is the "Missus"—Mrs. John Q. Public—who has, as usual, been giving the matter the most consideration because she does most of the buying and family "worrying."

It is she who pays the most attention to prices when she goes to the stores and asks questions of the clerk. It is she who watches the ads and prices in the local newspapers. For the most part, Mrs. John Q. Public constitutes the millions of housewives all over the United States who do the greater part of the purchasing for the household. She knows as well as, or even better than some economists, that a definite income by the wage-earners of the family will buy a certain amount of food.

She knows only too well that if prices go up, incomes remaining the same, less can be purchased. When prices go down more can be purchased, or, possibly, a better grade or brand of product can be bought instead.

Mrs. Public Is Realistic.

Mrs. John Q. Public isn't theoretical about costs, supply, demand—and all such similar, abstract terms. She, being a woman, is as realistic (and sometimes as tough, too!) as an army sergeant. She knows that the family can't be fed, clothed, and provided for in general on theory.

But . . . When President Roosevelt signed the price control bill he was fully conscious of, and advised about it. The primary purpose of the bill was to prevent rising costs that lead to inflation. Inflation which would cause more hardship in Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public's home than any possible increase in price, or prices, of consumers' goods. Even at that, the President noted in a press conference, the fight to prevent inflation had not, as yet, been completely won.

There are many provisions of this price control bill which are well worth remembering. The first to remember is that the price administrator—Leon Henderson—has the authority to fix a maximum price on commodities, regardless of the number, that are needed for the suc-

Leon Henderson, administrator, Office of Price Administration (OPA), who has the responsibility of successfully carrying out the price control act, besides seeing that it is enforced. As the accompanying article points out, the price control bill is both a war time measure to prevent inflation, and then post war deflation.

Henderson-Wickard Joint

Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard and Leon Henderson, administrator of the Office of Price Administration, made public the following statement concerning the price control bill after it was signed by the President:

"Families who hoarded in the past were simply misguided and unpatriotic, for such buying upsets markets and encourages inflationary price advances.

U. S. Family and Price Control

Courtesy, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In May, 1939, the department of agriculture inaugurated the Federal Food Stamp plan to assist millions of families such as this one. Today, in '42, the federal government, through its price control bill, is again attempting to help this family and others by trying to prevent inflation during the war, and deflation when peace comes. Inflation, bringing about a skyrocketing of retail prices, invariably hits the working man (John Q. Public) and his family.

cessful carrying on, and completion, of the war; or for civilian use and consumption.

What price is Leon Henderson, administrator of the Office of Price Administration, going to put as "tops" on commodities? Mrs. J. Q. P. asks. The answer to that is found in the bill itself. It states that the prices between the first of October, and the 15th of October, 1941, are to serve as the basis for fixing of maximum prices. Fishery and farm prices are the exceptions. Before a maximum would be placed on commodities, prices could go to 110 per cent of what they were during the 15 days in October, 1941, before the "lid" would be put on by OPA boss, Henderson. If prices during the period mentioned were not "representative" prices, the nearest to representative two week period will be used.

If the "Missus" remembers what she paid for articles during the two weeks in October, '41, she will be able, generally speaking, to get an idea of what she will pay even if the prices are allowed to go to the 110 per cent level, which is 10 per cent above the full price charged. It should be remembered, though, that the ceilings placed on commodities will be mostly on raw, unfinished materials.

Price Administrator Henderson, in a recent statement, said that the application of price ceilings all depended on just how all the Mrs. J. Q. Publics throughout the United States reacted to it. If they took the price control in an intelligent way (as he suspects they will) and didn't try to gobble up those commodities they thought were going to be scarce, there would be no need to put a top price on the article. Calm, cool and collected seems to be the attitude they should take.

The bill also has a provision in it that checks a too-great rise in rents. This provision applies only to areas designated by the OPA as being in "defense housing" sections of the country, where a "boom" could have taken place. If you are living in one of such designated sections, rents since April 1, 1941, will be the guide for OPA officials to put the top permissible price. Over 230 surveys have been conducted in such "defense" areas by officials under Henderson to get the rental prices in those areas so that there won't be any undue hardship on renters.

Despite this being war-time in the United States, there will be—as always—those who will try to circumvent and chisel on the price control plan. Mrs. Public might call them war profiteers. To punish such who violate price ceilings the control bill carries some stiff provisions: imprisonment for two years and fines up to $5,000.

Purchasers Can Sue.

An individual who figures he or she has been charged more than what the price ceilings stipulated, can sue the person or persons from whom the purchases were made for either triple damages, or $50—depending on whatever might be larger.

A very important provision of the bill is that it exempts wages and salaries. No ceilings have been placed on them. It must be remembered though, that wages increase, to an extent, because the price of commodities rise. All who work for a salary, or a wage, want to be sure that what they earn will buy enough to live on according to a decent standard of living.

Also exempted were insurance and professional fees, railroads and utilities, newspapers and periodicals, radio, motion pictures and theaters. Even though nothing extraordina-

Price Control Statement

"The American people should realize that it will be the objective of their government to stabilize the cost of living. They, too, can do their part. There is no occasion for hoarding of food.

Total supplies of most staple foods are at record or near record levels.

"It should be a point of pride with every good American NOT to hoard or to waste food.

ry will be done by price control officials in extending the price ceiling over other commodities besides the 80 or so now covered, the placing of ceilings will continue little by little, putting one here and there on various commodities whenever an inflationary trend is noted. For example: Store owners selling typewriters or radios, or electric ironers, having very little chance of getting more for sale in their stores, will naturally boost the prices on those they have on hand. It is such cases that will bring about a price control "top price" to be charged on that commodity.

Eventually all businesses operating under a price ceiling will have to get a license to do business. OPA officials have not decided on what type of license machinery to put into operation, as permitted by the price control bill. A seller of commodities, operating under such a license, can have his license revoked if he persists in defying the provisions of selling above permitted top prices. Of course, such a revoking of license comes through court procedure and only upon a second offense following a warning given up on a first offense.

As the list of commodities under the price control plan lengthens, your local newspapers, the radio, and periodicals will tell you what the recently added ones are.

The complexity of the world has been the cause of such a far reaching bill as that of the price control being passed. But it should always be remembered that a successful completion of the war we are now in requires there be no inflation. And after the successful American completion of the war, there must be a minimum of post-war deflation so as to win the peace that follows.

Mules and Horses Making Comeback

War-time auto restrictions plus present, and impending future rationings, are the cause of horses and mules making a comeback.

As gasoline becomes more restricted, and tires can't be replaced or retreaded; as the full force of industrial America gets behind its Uncle Sam's war machine, you'll see more and more horses and mules going through their daily chores.

Recent reports coming from both the South and the West show such a revival in breeding, and in the sale of available horse and mule stocks.

Decline Began in 1920.

It was in 1920 that the decline in the number of horses and mules began to take place. That year there were over 25 million. From 1920 to 1940, the latest data available, the decline was over 45 per cent to a figure of a little better than 13 million. The decline might have been greater, but for the work of the Horse and Mule Association of America which organized in 1920 to check the drop.

Traders, today, are beginning to benefit by the increased demand for the animals for prices are advancing. In 1941 owners of stables experienced their worst year as far as sales were concerned. But, since then both old and new customers have been coming around for a little first-class trading, swapping, or buying. So much so that many of the stable owners and auctioneers are planning on building new centers, or reopening old places.

Oldtimers, those who really know good horseflesh as far as being real workers, are getting interested once again.

But there is one difficulty which is handicapping horse breeders, and that is the lack of good breeding stock from Europe. The possibility of a permanent stoppage of Belgian male horses because of the Nazi occupation of Belgium is certain.

One writer, discussing the situation in a veterinary journal brought out the fact of a lack of European stock very well. It was noted, though, that all is not a dismal picture. For as many traders and breeders in the United States will tell—there are plenty of good stallions in this country.

U. S. A. E. F.'s Free Mail Raises Question Of Abolishing Congressional Frank... Enemy Nation's 'Secret Weapons' a Nightmare . . . (Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—What with all this talk about saving paper, decreasing non-defense spending, etc., this should be a good time for congress to consider cutting down the almost unlimited use of the franking privilege for mail.

An amusing sidelight on the attitude of individual congressmen toward this question of saving postage is given in the vote to grant soldiers overseas the right to send mail home free. The congressmen really thought they were giving the soldiers something! They were—an estimated average of six cents a week!

This is based on the idea that the average soldier and sailor will not write more than two letters home a week—one to his parents and one to his girl. The average stated is purely an estimate. There are no available figures, but parents of soldiers or sailors to whom the writer has talked say they would be tickled pink if the boys would average one letter a month to them.

However, they all said, it was not to save postage that the boys refrained from writing as often as the old folks would like.

The soldiers and sailors, for the most part, are kept pretty active. They are apt to be tired in their brief hours of relaxation and not inclined to tackle what, to most of them, is a laborious duty.

A point in favor of the newest subsidy to the soldiers, which seems rather sound, is made by a person who is not a congressman. There may be, this gentleman pointed out, difficulty in obtaining stamps at various places to which the soldiers may be assigned. So the fact that the boys do not have to scurry around to obtain stamps might be much more important than saving a maximum of six cents a week.

Apparently the best reason for granting this mail subsidy—if we can assume this difficulty of obtaining stamps in the field to be the best reason—did not occur to ANY member of the house or senate while the bill was under consideration.

For the bill carefully confines this huge grant to enlisted men. It specifically bars the free mail plan to commissioned officers. As the officers with the troops would obviously have the same ease or difficulty in obtaining stamps that the enlisted men would encounter, it would seem that the ONLY purpose of the bill was to increase slightly the pay of the enlisted men.

Important to Congressmen

One must not blame the congressmen for this, or think of the gift to our soldiers as trivial, as the lawmakers viewed the situation. For to a congressman the franking privilege is not trivial—it is tremendous.

If deprived of that privilege the average congressman probably would spend more than a thousand dollars a year in postage. But with free postage for anything he chooses to send (congressmen have sent furniture under the frank) the actual amount of unchecked service he gets from the post office department is of course much higher.

In this time of bundles for congressmen there is no desire to discourage giving, and certainly no desire to reach into congressmen's pockets, but why not put the mail on the same basis as stationery? Congressmen do not get free stationery, unless they are chairmen of committees. They get an allowance every year to buy it.

Why not abolish the frank and give every congressman and official who is supposed to require it, an allowance for that purpose? Boy, would there be a saving of paper in Washington, not to mention the weight taken off letter carriers' feet!

Why Not Use Some German Inventions?

Secret weapons have been a nightmare to the military commanders of every nation at war—not their own secret weapons, of course, but possible secret weapons developed by one of their enemies.

The inventors of America have led the world for many years. Curiously enough Americans invented most of the weapons which are so important in this war. And Britain comes pretty close to being second.

Britain invented the breech-loading gun. She sent to the Confederates two breech-loading cannon of about three-inch size which were used at the battle of Gettysburg.

If the Confederates had been able to use 100 instead of two, the tremendous difference in rapidity of fire, accuracy, and range, might have won the war for Robert E. Lee.

It would seem about time that the United Nations should be able to use successfully some former German invention! That may be a little too much to hope for, but surely it is about time that we used one of our own inventions in one of our own wars.

THE PARABLES BY THE SEA

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:26-32; Matthew 13:44-50. GOLDEN TEXT—Never man spake like this man.—John 7:46.

Parables as a means of conveying truth reached perfection in the hands of the Master Teacher, Jesus. Taking short stories of well-known events or facts from daily life, He presented profound truth in the most simple and attractive form.

Except for the parable of the four kinds of seed which He interpreted (Matt. 13:18-23), He left it to His listeners to make their own application. This has led to some difference of opinion, but in general the parables are received as excellent and helpful portions of God's Word.

In the two passages of Scripture assigned for our lesson, we have five parables, each with a distinctive message, yet together pointing out that there is a time of growth leading to harvest and judgment, and that our gracious God has at great cost provided a way of redemption.

I. Normal Growth Is Blessed (Mark 4:26-29).

God is patient. He awaits the normal, healthy, steady growth of the seed. Man is so impatient he must have forced growth, artificial stimulation, and even artificial ripening of the fruit.

The same attitude enters into his care of his children. They must get ahead in school beyond their years. They must get out and make a living long years before they have learned to make a life. Why not let them mature in the orderly, God-given way?

The same is true in the work of the church. There must be immediate "tangible" results or he will not give his support. Anyone with judgment knows that spiritual life takes time to develop, and that spiritual results cannot be judged by physical or tangible standards. Seedtime, growing time, normal ripening, then harvest—that is God's order and it is a good one.

II. Abnormal Growth Is Dangerous (Mark 4:30-32).

Normally the mustard tree is a small plant, and when it grew into a great tree something abnormal had taken place. Birds (which always denote something unclean in Scripture) came to lodge in its branches.

Just so, Christianity was never intended to be made up of a nominally Christian world empire in which ungodly men (the dark birds of the evil one, Matt. 13:19) should find comfortable lodgment. Unfortunately, that is just what happened to Christianity in the so-called conquest of the Roman empire at the time of Constantine. The results were disastrous. The same principle is evident today in the control of much of the church by worldly men.

III. Redemption Is Costly (Matt. 13:44-46).

While it is true that our redemption is worth more than anything else in all the world and that the Christian would gladly set aside (or would he?) everything for Christ's sake, yet that does not fulfill the thought of this parable. After all, what has a sinner (whose own righteousness is described in Scripture as "filthy rags") to sell in order to obtain redemption? And is it for sale? (See Eph. 2:8.)

Obviously we here have the Saviour with His all-seeing eye and loving heart noting in fallen humanity the pearl of great price, His own Church. He then gives up all the glory He had with the Father, comes to the earth, and even becomes sin for us that He may bring us to God.

Salvation in Christ is no little thing, not something which was purchased with gold or silver, but with the precious blood of Christ. We ought to value it highly, and because we are bought with a price we ought always to glorify God (I Cor. 6:28).

IV. Judgment Is Certain (Matt. 13:47-50).

All kinds of fish were in the net, and until the cord was drawn and the net emptied they looked much alike and enjoyed much the same standing as "citizens" of the sea. But when they faced the fisherman there was a quick division, and a final judgment upon the bad ones.

It is true that in God's kingdom (as it is now manifested in "mystery" in the Church) there are many who have come in by false profession, through carelessness of pastors or church officials, etc. They go through the motions, they look and act much like Christians (although even here they create questions in the minds of true followers of Christ). The day is coming, however, when they shall stand in judgment before the Christ whom they profess to love and follow. How terrible shall be their doom!

They need not wait in fear for that day. They may now, today make right their relationship with God.

Anyway, Jonah Had Been Taken In by the Whale!

The nervous curate had arranged to preach on Jonah and the whale.

"And for three days and three nights," he began, "Jonah was in the—"

He blushed, stammered, stopped, and then started again:

"For three days and three nights Jonah was in the—"

Once more he was covered with confusion, and once more he stopped, and mopped his face.

Then he gathered his courage in both hands, and with a mighty effort he finished triumphantly: "And for three days and three nights Jonah was in the society of the whale."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

W.N.U. RELEASE

INSTALLMENT THIRTEEN
THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, who has come to Honolulu to press her claims to the island estate of Alakoa, learns that she is not an heiress at all, as her grandfather, Garrett Waterson, is still alive and on his way to the island. She and Tonga Dick or Richard Wayne, a member of the Wayne family which has been in control of the property since her grandfather's disappearance, find they are in love and decide to leave the island of Alakoa together. Out to sea, they discover that Lilua, a native house-girl, has stowed away aboard ship. Karen accuses Dick of making love to the native girl and they quarrel. Angered, Dick orders the ship to return to Alakoa. On the way back, Lilua is found seriously hurt with a knife wound. Dick questions the Chinese mess boy regarding the incident.

Now continue with the story.

"Has anyone gone out of here through the galley?" Dick asked.

"No, sir."

"This girl has been hurt—stabbed. You stay here with her—do anything you can for her, until I get back."

The face of the Chinese was starting with confusion and alarm. Very probably he had never seen the girl before in his life, and now supposed that Dick himself had done her in. He remained silent, however, and stayed where he was told.

Inyashi slid down the hand rail and landed at the foot of the ladder as Dick turned.

"Someone was knifed here a minute ago," Dick told him, "when you heard that scream. Has anyone come up the ladder since then?"

"No, Captain Dick. But there's a man standing by the taff-rail. He acts queer—maybe he is the one. He stands naked by the rail and looks at the sea, and the crew is afraid to go near him. Maybe he came up from here by the skylight?"

Dick snatched a rifle from a rack upon the forward bulkhead. "That's it! Who is he—do you know him?"

"It's that big new Kanaka."

"I hired no new Kanaka!"

"He came over the side out of the water, just before we sailed; he said you sent him. His name is Hokano, I think."

Dick seized Inyashi and pushed him up the ladder. "Stop your engines," he ordered, following close on Inyashi's heels.

"Full astern?"

"No! If you do that the propellers will catch him as he jumps. Man the dinghy with the four Kanaka boys, and lower away."

"Yes, Captain!" In a moment more everyone on the ship was snapped into action by Inyashi's shrill, sputtering commands.

Emerging on the deck, Dick saw at once the immensely tall, broad-shouldered figure of Hokano standing against the rail in the extreme stern. Hokano faced the sea, motionless as a mast. The tall figure was no more than twenty-five feet away, and for a moment Dick was strongly tempted to try bringing down Hokano with the butt of his rifle. He gave up that idea; even if he succeeded in felling the big Kanaka before Hokano could leap into the sea, the stunned man would be extremely likely to slither over the rail and sink like a plummet.

"Kamaku! Roll the searchlight out!"

Karen was at his elbow, her face white and frightened.

"What is it? What's happened?"

"Lilua's lover has come after her—and got her," Dick said.

"She's—killed?"

"Probably."

Her eyes were on the rifle in his hands. "What are you going to do?"

"Going to call a policeman," he snapped at her. "Get that boat over! What are you waiting for?"

Now the Diesel quit, so that the Holokai seemed suddenly silent. The rush of the water at her bows diminished as she lost way.

As if awakened by the shutting down of the power, the motionless figure in the stern came to life abruptly. Hokano sprang lightly onto the rail itself, and for a moment poised upright. Then he launched into the night in a beautiful clean arc, arms outspread, turning downward to disappear almost silently into the black water.

Now the big searchlight came trundling out on its unwieldy tripod. In a moment more it began to sweep the surface of the sea, searching for the place where the swimmer would come up. The Holokai's dinghy took to the water flounderingly, and immediately shot astern.

Dick said to Karen, "I knew he was going to do that." He walked after without hurry, and took his place at the rail where Hokano had stood. There wasn't any way to stop him. He'll be easier to handle in the water."

"Would he try—" Karen gasped—"could he possibly swim all the way back to—"

"Of course not. He doesn't expect to get back."

The searchlight picked up the swimmer now, fifty yards back in the Holokai's wake. In moments when the waves favored, those on the deck of the vessel could glimpse a flash of wet shoulders, but nothing else. Hokano was swimming face down, taking advantage of the swells like a seal. The Holokai had lost stearage way, and was rolling sickly in the swells. Dick braced a knee against the rail and brought his rifle up.

Karen cried out, "Would you shoot him in the water?"

—A vast scimitar shaped thing, higher than the Holokai's booms; then it drove downward, disappearing in black water—

"Do you expect me to wait until he jumps into the air?"

He fired, and a spout of water sprang up far to the left of Hokano. Karen saw now what Dick was firing at. The tall fin of Kai-Ale-Ale was curving near, gliding lazily, unhurried. Dick fired again, without effect; he could not see his sights. Karen's teeth were chattering. "I thought—I thought you said sharks never harm brown men."

"This thing isn't like other sharks! Nobody knows anything about him."

The incredibly long, monstrous shape of Kai-Ale-Ale was snouting near to the swimmer now; Hokano must have seen it, but he swam straight on, unmindful. The boy manning the searchlight suddenly swung it aside, and held it unsteadily upon the monster. A long phosphorescent gleam of turned water suddenly shone half the length of the whale shark's back emphasizing the unbelievable.

Dick sighted upon the base of the great fin and fired four times. Suddenly the fin jerked rigid, and a great gout of water went up. The fin sunk from view; far back, incredibly far back from where it disappeared, the great tail fluke rose out of the sea. For a moment the searchlight held it—a vast scimitar shaped thing, higher than the water than the Holokai's booms; then it drove downward, disappearing in black water as Kai-Ale-Ale sounded.

"Stay down there a while," Dick said.

"Did you kill it?"

"You can't kill that thing."

The searchlight found the boat again. It was rising and falling idly, and its bow rose clear of the water as the Kanakas hauled the slack body of Hokano over the transom.

CHAPTER XII

Hokano, that tall unhappy man who had tried to end Lilua's life and his own, presently lay bound with wet cordage in a foc'sle bunk. One of his brother Kanakas had bashed him over the head with an oar, as Hokano had turned, treading water, to look at Kai-Ale-Ale.

Tonga Dick Wayne had been right in sending a Kanaka crew in the boat to pick up Hokano; the maxim of South Sea sailors was true—that no one knew how to handle a Kanaka except a Kanaka. Hokano, naked though he looked, had his knife slung about his neck by a senet cord, and he would have slashed the wrist tendons of anyone who laid hands on him from the boat while he was conscious. After one of them had knocked him out with an oar, another Kanaka had dove to rescue him, and had stopped the sinking of the inert turn.

It would have been weird watching, for anyone, to see those simple, casual maneuvers—the Kanaka boys standing with easy, natural balance in the reeling little boat on the swells of the sea, letting the dinghy stand on the heel of her scant hull while they dragged Hokano in, without any one of them ever losing his superb balance, and never shipping a quart of water. Nobody not a Kanaka could ever understand the easy affinity of that amphibious people to the sea; sea-riding a small boat, or a canoe, or a floating stick, as easily as a haole walks on asphalt pavement, or handles his knife and fork.

Bound with cords that cut too deep ever to slip, Hokano lay in a foc'sle bunk, awake and impassive. Aft, in Dick Wayne's bed, lay the girl Hokano had tried to kill, fighting for her life; the intense native vitality of Lilua's body held onto life avidly, regardless of how little Lilua herself cared whether she lived or died.

Karen Waterson sat beside Lilua, and Inyashi and the Chinese mess boy hovered behind Karen, useful chiefly to hold Lilua down when she could no longer be controlled. Lilua was not out of her head entirely; she babbled unceasingly in the Hawaiian tongue. Dick went away, unable to listen any more; Lilua was talking as if her heart would break and kill her if her wound did not.

He went on deck and stood at the stern, swaying to a sea he did not feel. The Holokai when full out had always had the character of a crazed animal, able to drive across the surface of the sea like a thing possessed, knocking the swells into spume; but it seemed to Dick now that she wallowed like a slug, getting no place. His whole soul was trying to jerk the Holokai out of the cling of the sea. He would have liked to lift her and throw her through space, and bring her against the beach of Alakoa like the thrust of a knife.

He was standing there, watching what seemed to him the slug-like process of the straining Holokai, when Karen came to his side.

"I'm sorry," Karen said. "I'm terribly sorry. Dick, this has been a thing such as I have never seen."

Dick said in a muffled way, "You don't know what you're saying. How would you know?"

"Dick," Karen said, "I should never have come into the Pacific—above all, I should never have come to Alakoa. I bring nobody anything but sorrow, and trouble, and death."

"Yes," said Dick brutally.

"I think," Karen said, "if it hadn't been for this mongrel girl, it would have been all right. We're an awfully long way apart, I guess; but—except for her—I think you and I would have got together, in the end."

Dick Wayne's elbows rested on the rail. The Holokai was throwing everything she had into kicking the sea behind her, and the white boil of her wake stretched into a path that failed only with night vision; but Tonga Dick was looking at something beyond its utmost reach. He spoke thickly, with an unaccustomed incoherence.

"That girl knew what it was to love something," he said.

It required a conscious effort of Karen's mind to know what girl he meant; but when she had done that she was ready for what he said next, even before he said it. "Without demanding anything, without ever any questions, or any terms. None of this everlasting doubt, and wavering, and indecision. Once and for all, she gave everything she had, and asked for nothing."

"I suppose you mean," Karen said, "that this half caste girl, this cousin of mine, as you say—"

"It matters a lot to you, doesn't it," Dick said bitterly, "exactly who this girl is? I would rather ask a woman what she thinks and feels, than who she is."

"And so," Karen said, with something like a tone of despair, "if a brown woman, or a black woman, can let herself go, more fully than I can, your answer is—?"

"Karen," Dick said, "if ever any woman has to ask herself if she loves a man, the answer is 'No.'"

The stubborn silence that fell between them then was broken—very gratefully for them both—by the impetuous projection of Inyashi between them. It always seemed that whatever Inyashi did was high-pressed, and sudden.

"Captain Dick, a vessel is coming in; she's three points off the quarter, now. I think it may be the boat you look for. Hard to tell yet, from just the lights."

The two at the taffrail, swinging their eyes to the left, could now see on the horizon a speck of light that showed winking in the rise and fall of the sea—the high running lights of a ship quartering in from beyond.

"All right," Dick said. "When we've anchored, I'll go out and pilot her in."

When Inyashi had moved away, Dick and Karen stood silent for a little while. When Karen spoke it was apparent that she was steadier, better poised than he.

"Can't you be fair to me?" she said. "Can't you be honest? If you and I can't be frank and honest with each other, who in the world can?"

"Honest?"

"You haven't always been honest with me, Dick. If you had told me at the first that Garrett Waterson was alive—"

"More honest, I think, than you with me."

"I can't imagine what you mean."

"You've played your hand alone—or else with John Colt; never with me. I've protected you in situations that you tried to conceal from me altogether."

problem which we will be faced with will be the proper use of leisure time. Working hours will be shorter and the individual will have much more time on his hands. This time may be used to advantage in a whole some way or it may be used in a way which will increase crime among our citizens. The school thru its program of activities is teaching young people worthwhile things to occupy minds and hands in the future. Few children of grade school age are capable of deciding what their life work or vocation shall be. Here in the school they are given an opportunity to select from the many extra activities those in which they find an interest. These activities are represented by handicraft, drama, collections, band, glee club, travel club and nature study. Here the children find interests which may carry over into later life and bring enjoyment and wholesome activity during leisure hours.

The school programs which are presented to the public also have a value in the educational program of the child and in his development. These programs are definite benefits to the children who take part. Here they learn the art of facing large groups of people, speaking clearly and with voice control. The conduct of an individual while a member of such a group must be such that will bring honor to the group. Here also is a situation of learning which could not be reached in the class room and could not be gained from books.

Time spent on these activities is time well spent and since the results in terms of growth, show that they must be every necessary part of the school program if the school is to be a good school and do its job and fulfill its obligation to the children and the community.

At our last meeting, The Citizen's Service Committee, completed arrangements to purchase the necessary toilet articles and supplies to make up the kits for the Boys in Service, which are now being made-up, and should be in the mails very shortly.

Mrs. Rogers, our Correspondence Chairman, has contacted nineteen boys so far, and has received several replies.

Mrs. Wm. Rick, Chairman of the baking committee will appreciate all the one-pound, heavy cardboard, or one-pound oatmeal boxes, that you can save for her. These boxes will be used to mail cookies etc. Please contact Mrs. Rick if you have any on hand.

The Tinley Park Times goes into the mail this week for the boys. Please advise the Committee if the paper is not received weekly.

All men who are being called to the Service, Enlisted or Selected, please call at Cavett's Drug Store or Funk's Lunch Room and ask for a Service Postal card. When you arrive at the Training Camp, please fill out the card, and return to us so we can place you on our mailing list.

Letters From The Boys.
Feb. 22, 1942
Tinley Park Citizen's Club,
Dear Friends:

I received your letter today and was very pleased. There must be some mistake though as I am not an M. P. I am a member of an M. P. unit. We guard all prisoners of war on this post and do all interior guard duty. Since being in the army I've done considerable traveling. Last April 25th I went to Ft. Sheridan, Ill. From there I was shipped to Camp Croft, S. C., for basic training infantry. After my training I was sent to the 28th division at Indiantown Gap, Pa. While with the 28th we went on maneuvers in Virginia and then on maneuvers in N. C. In January we changed our home station to Camp Livingston, La. And from there I was transferred to the air corps at Jefferson Bks., Mo. Just outside of St. Louis. This is a training center but most of the activity here is a military secret. I have applied for flying cadet training and hope to fly for Uncle Sam. If I have been a little behind in my correspondence to my friends please excuse me as you can see I have been moving around so much that I guess I don't think about writing. If I see action though I'll try to bring you all a few Japs hides for souvenirs.

You asked if I could use a sweater. I sure could. My chest size is 40 and I use a Gem razor. Thanking you all.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN GOTHAM,
Flight D 355 S. S. Jefferson Bks., Mo.

Alright Johnnie, your sweater is being knitted, and if we don't drop too many stitches, you will have a nice sweater. Don't try to kid the old veterans about this M. P. business, as we know an M. P. when we hear him talk.

Camp Forest, Feb. 20, 1942
Citizen Club Members:
It's really gratifying to know of Clubs such as yours that are doing so much towards keeping the soldiers morale high.

As to the committee sending me things that would be pretty hard thing, you see Uncle Sam is a pretty good provider and outside of cigarettes or stamps everything is Government issue. Of course there are a lot of personal items that seem to gather seemingly out of nowhere.

The fellows keep sending things of that nature home and being in a state of "readiness" as we have been ever since the declaration of war was made and have to be able to move out at a moment's notice. All we can take with us is what we carry on our back. So you see that leaves little room for anything other than just bare necessities.

Because of military reasons I'm not allowed to write anything concerning the camp itself, as to size or how many men are here, as much as I would like to. There's hardly a day passes without some of the boys being moved out for parts unknown. It's hard to say if my present address will be a lasting one. I will keep in touch with you tho and give my address where I may be moved to.

Thanking you again for your interest and in the work your club is doing.

Very Respectfully Yours,
Sgt. RICHARD MARQUET

PALOS PARK

By DOROTHY ROBSON

The Palos Oak Hill Cemetery Association wishes to thank everyone for their splendid cooperation in helping to make their chop suey supper held last week such a huge success.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Leibinger of Chicago spent Sunday afternoon visiting the G. H. Powell family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Robson, Sr., of Chicago spent Saturday evening at the J. L. Mains home.

The pupils of McCord School enjoyed a Valentine party held at the school last Friday afternoon. The guests were Mrs. John Homering and son Jimmie, Gene and Patsy Adams, Jackie Treadway, Evelyn Keating and Dorothy Robson. Games were played and after serving ice-cream and cake, valentines were exchanged.

The Cook County Home Bureau is a year old. Everyone should celebrate the birthday in full force at the first annual meeting, which will be held on March 3 at the Lyonsville Church, corner of Joliet and Wolf Roads, 2 miles southwest of LaGrange.

The business meeting, including election of officers and short reports from each unit will be held at 10 a.m. Luncheon will be served by the Lyonsville unit. Fannie Brooks, Health Specialist of the University of Illinois, will be the featured speaker in the afternoon.

Reservations should be made immediately through your local transportation chairman. Mrs. Myrtle Jedlicka is transportation chairman for the Palos-Lemont Unit, so call her at Palos Park 765-R-2. If you have room in your car for anyone or haven't any transportation at all, she will make the necessary arrangements.

At the last Palos-Lemont Home Bureau meeting held February 13 at the home of Mrs. Lester the following new officers were elected: Mrs. Irving H. Pronger as chairman, Mrs. Arthur Adams, Vice-Chairman and Mrs. John Jedlicka Jr. as Secretary-Treasurer. The next meeting will be held March 13 at the home of Mrs. John Macauley, 131st and Archer avenue. Dues are now payable for the year. A very interesting program will be presented.

Tuesday at 12:30 Mrs. Charles Retzke held a luncheon at her home for the benefit of the Salvation Army. She was assisted by Mrs. Johnson.

The Palos Township Defense Ball sponsored by the Civilian Defense Unit held Saturday night at the Village Hall was a great success. Robert A. Firalyo was coordinator and Dr. A. M. Bressler as Chairman. This was for the benefit of the Civilian Defense Fund for Palos Township.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY DEPARTMENT
Frank Sanders celebrated his 12th birthday the 15th with a party held in his honor at his home. Happy birthday Frank and many more of them!

The Palos Unit of the Girl Scouts celebrated their 3rd birthday last week. Mrs. Stone presented a birthday cake. Mrs. Carl A. Peterson is the leader with Mesdames DeRoulet and Firalyo as assistant leaders. The name of the unit is the Lone Oak Troop and the following girls are the members: Doris Fuhrberg, Claudia Landin, Zeean Lynn, Ruth Oilhoff, Lois Firalyo, Patsy Reed, Patsy Wahn, Marilyn Pihl, Nancy Peterson, Jane Massey, Amy Fuhrberg, Jean Anderson, Virginia Lindquist, Betty Lou Juneman, Peggy Furry and Shirley Treadway. The program was presented by Mrs. Carl A. Peterson, chairman of education.

The Palos Juniors have had a busy two weeks initiating 10 new members.

We are glad to report that Catherine McLaughry is recovering rapidly from her recent operation and will return home from the Englewood hospital very soon.

Ten Palos Park ladies attended the Aunt Jemima Luncheon at the Worth Church sponsored by the Worth Ladies' Aid February 16.

Jennie Weir is quite improved from her recent illness and is able to be out again.

Palos Township registered 167 men for the third draft last Monday at the Village hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul T. Sanders returned home last Friday from their three weeks vacation to Texas and Mexico. They report having a wonderful trip and seeing many interesting sights.

Palos is glad to hear that the two Wagner girls have returned home from the hospital this week. They were in a serious automobile accident Christmas morning and have been in hospitals ever since. They are gaining rapidly and I am sure everyone hopes they will be out and about very soon.

About the appliances we advertise nowadays

The appliances we are now advertising are limited to those we have on hand, or those that are made available without interference with war production.

They have all been selected because their normal operation in the home comes at a time of day when our electrical facilities are more than adequate to meet present power requirements for both war production and civilian use.

Furthermore, we believe that their use in most cases will conserve energy and tend to release home labor for helpful wartime activities.

See these electric aids in a range of styles and prices

You can get the electric appliances you've been needing, and with several styles to choose from, too! Note these values:

Income Tax Facts

Taxes due on a return filed for the calendar year 1941 may be paid in full at the time of the filing of the return on or before March 16, 1942. The tax may, at the option of the taxpayer, be paid in four equal installments instead of in a single payment, in which case the first installment is to be paid on or before March 16, 1942, the second on or before June 15, the third on or before September 15, and the fourth on or before December 15, 1942. If the taxpayer elects to pay his tax in four installments, each of the four installments must be equal in amount but any installment may be paid, at the election of the taxpayer, prior to the time prescribed for its payment.

If an installment is not paid in full on or before the date fixed for its payment, the whole amount of the tax remaining unpaid is required to be paid upon notice and demand from the collector.

The tax must be paid to the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer's return is required to be filed, that is, to the collector for the district in which is located the taxpayer's legal residence or principal place of business, or if he has not legal residence or principal place of business in the United States, then to the Collector of Internal Revenue at Baltimore, Maryland.

The tax due, if any, should be paid in cash at the Collector's office, or by check or money order payable to "Collector of Internal Revenue." In the case of payment in cash, the taxpayer should in every instance require and the collector should furnish a receipt. In the case of payments made by check or money order however, the cancelled check or the money order receipt is usually a sufficient receipt.

School Officials To Hold Meeting

The annual meeting of Township School Trustees and Treasurers will be held in the Circuit Court Room of the Will County Court house, Joliet, Ill. Friday evening, March 6, at 7:30 p.m. War Time. This meeting is to take the place of that which was originally scheduled for the same time that directors and teachers will be meeting February 28, 1942.

The program for the evening is to be built around a discussion of the problems of School Treasurers and Trustees.

The Munitions Plants and the large influx of population accounts for some of the problems of reorganization which now face certain school districts in Will County.

The Township School Trustees and Treasurers are in a peculiarly responsible position in this matter of school district reorganization. Your decisions in these affairs may have a very important bearing on the educational welfare of the children in your township.

EVEN big-city folks must have their "neighborhood stores"! Most of them would no more think of going down town to fight their way through the crowds in search of a roast for dinner than they would of walking to the factory to get a pair of shoes.

City women know that their neighborhood stores can supply them just what they want — and that, in most cases, the service is more alert and friendly.

The same thing is true of this "neighborhood". Our merchants—the men whose ads you read in this paper—are in position to furnish your home with the best and most popular brands of goods. Not only can they save you money, but they gladly relieve you of a lot of worry and loss of time.

ORLAND HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Orland Community high school is already getting accustomed to hearing band music ringing through the halls. Eighteen eager young musicians have been practicing since December and are showing such remarkable progress that a good band at Orland high doesn't seem to be very far away. Mr. Harlan states that most of the pupils are progressing at a rate far above average for beginners. The enthusiasm is so great now that Mr. Harlan doesn't even have to tell them to practice at home. Most of the members practice of their own free will.

The great enthusiasm has led to two outcomes. First the band has, of their own free will, decided to spend two noon hours per week in practice. Secondly, the enthusiasm has spread to other pupils who are eager to start on band instruments. For this group, Mr. Harlan is starting another class around the first of March. There is still an opportunity to join this group. Mr. Harlan is sure that enough pupils will start in this group to assure Orland of a 30 to 40 piece band next year.

MOKENA

CLARENCE W. JOHNSON
DELIVERS INSPIRING TALK
BEFORE PTA GROUP

The outstanding feature of Mokena Pta program Tuesday evening was, no doubt, the inspiring address of Mr. C. W. Johnson, principal of the Downers Grove Community High School. In pointing out the work a PTA can do to build better citizens, Mr. Johnson emphasized the need of tolerance and charity in a world periodically engaged in a war of hate, selfishness and greed. While teaching of the three R's is as important as ever, we need to train our children to think clearly for themselves.

This is the job, not only of our schools, but also of the parents in the home. Only after we have taught the children by precept and example to think for themselves are they fit to face the realities of life and to solve their own peculiar problems in a troublesome world. In this work teachers and parents need follow the example of Abraham Lincoln who regularly prayed for divine guidance and help as he faced the grave perils threatening the nation during the dark days of the Civil War.

In commemoration of the 45th birthday of PTA organization Mrs. Stokes Nebeker and Mrs. Roy Krapp presented a candle-lighting ceremony.

A committee consisting of Mesdames Steel, Krapp, Needham and the Misses Hennessey and Johnson was appointed to direct the purchase of books on social hygiene to be loaned for reading to the parents and the teachers of the community.

Mr. R. Geuther, Mrs. A. Bender and Mr. G. Dunne were appointed to direct a book campaign to supply the needs of men in the service of

Who Wouldn't Come to a Dinner Like This?
(See Recipes Below)

Accent on Dinner

Dinner is the master meal of the day and as such requires the most masterful stroke the homemaker can apply. With time unlimited, this master stroke is not so hard to bring into play, but with days like these which are filled to the utmost with activity of all kinds, time-saving hints and ideas for dinner are important.

Planning a meal which can all be baked is both time and money saving. If you're pinched for silver and aluminum for cooking and serving, you can use glasswares for both the cooking and serving.

Today I'm discussing a dinner that is equally adaptable for either a family or company dinner. It's one of those meals that you won't forget because it's always bound to be successful from the point of view of appetite appeal, ease in serving and ease in cooking. Tuck these ideas where they won't gather dust, for they'll gather fame more easily.

*Lamb Roast.

(Serves 8 to 10)

5 to 6 pound leg of lamb
Garlic clove or slice of onion
Salt and pepper

Have a leg of lamb boned and tied. Wipe with a damp cloth but do not remove fell, the parchment-like covering over the meat. Rub garlic or onion (or onion salt, if you have neither of those) over the meat, then rub salt and pepper. Bake in a slow (300-degree) oven, allowing 30 to 35 minutes to the pound. If a heat resistant glass platter is used, the lamb may be served from that.

*Franconia Potatoes.

(Serves 8 to 10)

8 to 10 medium-sized potatoes
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Cook potatoes in boiling salted water for 15 minutes. Drain and place in the oven around the meat to finish roasting, about 40 minutes. Pour melted butter and chopped parsley over potatoes when done. Arrange with whole, cooked carrots on platter and serve.

A hot bread on a cool evening adds plenty of staccato to the menu, and I would advise serving it often. This one is especially appropriate for the menu today because your oven will be hot and you can bake it before you put in the meat.

Lynn Says:

Trying to tackle the winter vegetable problem? Here's a parade of suggestions that will prop up your meals:

Baked squash with small white onions baked in the hollow. A bit of cream sauce added just before serving to the onions will also perk up this dish. Sprinkle with paprika for color.

Carrots: glaze these with brown sugar and butter when baking. For cooked carrots add a bit of tartness with lemon juice.

Serve canned or cooked lima beans with this smart mustard sauce: 4 tablespoons butter mixed with ½ teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon ground mustard and 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Beets like to be teamed up with a Harvard sauce. Thicken the beet liquid with cornstarch and add a bit of grated orange rind and juice for delightful variation.

Sprinkle cooked asparagus with grated Swiss cheese and brown under the broiler.

Parsons: parboil these, then dip in egg and bread crumbs. Fry until a golden brown.

Turnips: cook and mash. Season with butter, salt and pepper and a dash of nutmeg.

This Week's Menu

Mixed Fruit Juices

*Lamb Roast

*Franconia Potatoes

Carrots

Fruit Salad

*Spice Bread Butter

*Caramel Crumb Custard

*Recipe Given.

*Spice Bread.

(Makes 1 quart loaf pan)

2½ cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 cup currants
2 eggs
1 cup milk
¼ cup shortening

Sift flour before measuring. Then sift together flour, baking powder, salt, sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves and ginger. Wash and drain currants; mix into dry ingredients. Add well beaten eggs, milk and melted shortening to dry ingredients. Stir only until just well combined. Pour into a greased loaf pan. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for about one hour.

Caramel flavoring flirts with custard in this dessert idea. But what's especially nice about this one is that you can bake it along with the bread since both require the same oven temperature. Custard's best baked in individual cups and the custard unmolded onto the dessert plates when ready to serve.

*Caramel Crumb Custard.

(Serves 8)

½ cup sugar
¼ cup boiling water
3 eggs
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 cup coarse dry bread crumbs (crusts removed)
¼ cup caramel syrup

Make a caramel syrup by melting ½ cup sugar in a skillet, very slowly, and allowing to cook until a golden brown. Remove from heat and add boiling water slowly. Return to heat for 10 minutes or until completely dissolved. Separate eggs and beat yolks until lemon colored. Gradually beat in 1 cup sugar, salt, syrup, milk and butter. Add bread crumbs and fold in stiffly beaten whites. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350-degree) about 40 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream.

Speaking of planning menus that seem to fit both company and family dinner occasions I thought you might like a few suggestions. Here are foods that fit each other because of their flavors blending together so smoothly, because of their balance and contrast in texture and flavor. They're easy to keep in mind and fix at a few hours' notice:

Apricot and Cream Cheese Salad

IMAGINARY INTERVIEWS

(The First Doughboy Abroad, and Adolf Hitler.)

Yank—Adolf, I am here.
Adolf—I'll be seeing you.
Yank—and sooner than you think! I hear you've been having a disagreeable winter.
Adolf—I can't be intimidated by weather.
Yank—That ain't the way I heard it.

Adolf—Bah! You're green and untrained. You represent a capitalistic nation. You are soft and flabby.

Yank—The voice is the voice of Adolf but the words are the words of Wilhelm.

Adolf—Where are you?
Yank—Wouldn't you like to know?

Adolf—I'll find out.
Yank—You bet. From now on I'll be in constant touch.

Adolf—I suppose you realize you are up against an unbeatable army.

Yank—Nix on that. I read that news from Russia.

Adolf—Russia, phooey! I'm not finished with her yet.

Yank—Boy, how you wish you were! Lissen, Adolf, how's your nervous breakdown coming along?

Adolf—That was all newspaper talk. I have no nervous breakdown.

Yank—I'll see that you get one now! Are you still wearing that uniform you were never going to take off until you had licked the world?

Adolf—Ja! Ja!
Yank—I didn't know cooties could stay so long in one place. Say, why don't you get wise and sue for peace?

Adolf—Me sue for peace! I've got the world under my heel.

Yank—All I got from that sentence was your name.

Adolf—What name?
Yank—Heel.

Adolf—Nincompoop! I consider you too small for me to notice.

Yank—If you think you look oversized you're crazy. How are your generals?

Adolf—Don't worry about my generals.

Yank—If you ain't worried why should I be?

Adolf—I'm itching to get a crack at you.

Yank—You're a poor judge of what causes those itches, Adolf. And, lissen, I've got a proposition for a partner of yours. It's an offer for Mussolini. Hollywood wants him in Keystone comedy revivals.

Adolf—He'd be no funnier there than he is here!

Yank—Why do you get all your partners out of vaudeville? Benito could have come from no place else. And now you're trying up with Japanese acrobats.

Adolf—You'd better not disparage my acrobats. They're putting on quite an act.

Yank—They crossed us by coming on during intermission. A year from now they won't even be able to get bookings in Perth Amboy.

Adolf—You amuse me.

Yank—You'll laugh all over when you see what I've brought over for you.

Adolf—What is it?
Yank—A bucksaw.

Adolf—What would I do with a bucksaw?

Yank—You'll find out!

Hitler has one great advantage over the rest of the Nazis; he doesn't have to listen to Hitler.

One of the most encouraging signs at Washington is the gradual disappearance of all those boys who were suddenly thrown off the stalling standard.

Harvey Wiley Corbett, noted architect, says the day of the skyscraper is over. That strikes us as a belated comment. It's years since anybody's had courage to build anything higher than three stories.

An engineer says red lights should be used during a blackout. Not, we hope, in the theory that anybody pay attention to them.

"All the Traffic Would Bear"

There was a time in America when there were no set prices. Each merchant charged what he thought "the traffic would bear." Advertising came to the rescue of the consumer. It led the way to the established prices you pay when you buy anything today.

Henry M. Bechstein

17459 Oak Park Ave.

Tinley Park, Illinois

DEAR CUSTOMER:

Our nation is at war — a modern war in which men and machines will determine the victor. We not only need machines at the front lines but we need machines back on the farm to produce the food to keep them there.

The all-out production of tanks and guns, planes and bombs, has already created a shortage of metals and many factories have only just begun to get into war production. This simply means that there is going to be less material left for making new farm equipment. There will be new equipment but not enough. The motto of this war seems to be, "Keep 'Em Rollin'." We have to keep 'em rolling on your farm and your neighbor's farm and we've got to do it with a lot less new equipment than we've ever had before. Operating your farm up to full capacity will not only be profitable but you will be doing your country a real service. Your first step in all-out production is to make sure your farm equipment is ready to roll.

We are not writing this letter with the idea of trying to frighten you but we do want to be sure you realize the necessity for placing your orders for repairs and equipment as early as possible. We suggest that you go over every piece of machinery on your farm with a fine-tooth comb and make a list of what you are going to need. Start with the tractor and go right on down the line. When you check over each machine, ask yourself this question: "Will it handle my work for 2 or 3 seasons if I'm not able to get repairs after this year?"

If you need new equipment, place your order now — we will make every effort to get it for you. If you have usable equipment which can be repaired by adding new parts, reconditioning and painting, now is the time to order the parts. If there is much mechanical work required to put your equipment in good operating condition, we know it will pay you to have the reconditioning job done in our modern shop by our trained servicemen.

When you order repairs, keep in mind that there are many companies furnishing "will-fit" replacement parts. These companies are interested in furnishing parts and are not concerned about the service you get from your equipment. These parts may look like the originals, but you have no assurance that they are made of the same quality of metal or machined to the same close limits. We use only Genuine John Deere Repair Parts which are exact duplicates of the originals.

The machines on your farm are needed in the production of Food for Victory — let us help you "Keep 'Em Rollin'."

Very truly yours,

Henry M. Bechstein

DARLING'S FERTILIZER grew contest corn on National and State Husking Fields.

1. NEW WORLD'S HUSKING RECORD (50.96) set on Theodore Schafer farm, LaSalle County, Illinois where both NATIONAL and Illinois State Contests were held on Darling fertilized fields.
2. Ralph Ford (Warren County) won the Indiana State Husking Contest on the Steve Taylor farm where Darling's Soil Builders helped grow the corn.
3. An increased yield of 13 bu. per acre with Darling's Soil Builders on the Iowa State husking field convinced the owner, William Treimey, O'Brien county, that it pays well to use Darling's fertilizers.
4. The Wisconsin State Husking Contest won by Omar Koopman, was held in La Crosse county. Another winning field with Darling's Soil Builders.

Plan now to get "all out" production from your allotted acreage. The surest and easiest way to increase crop yields, improve quality and build up land fertility, is by fertilizing every acre with DARLING'S SOIL BUILDERS.

Darling's have already felt the effect of priorities and shortages on some of the other products they manufacture, such as glycerine, animal fats and glue. They have had trouble getting certain fertilizer ingredients and hardly know from one day to the next what their position will be for getting out our spring fertilizer.

Definite orders already received are for more than double the tonnage a year ago at this time. They will continue to accept orders so long as they have anything to sell. Times are too uncertain to make any predictions, but our best advice to our customers is to place orders right away, and unless we already have your order, get it to us just as soon as you possibly can. Your definite order booked with us is the best protection we know of in these times.
